Re: UCT boosts security upgrades following armed robberies

Good day,

The article published under the headline "UCT boosts security upgrades following armed robberies" refers.

The introduction to this paragraph mentions "a spate of armed robberies on the campus last weekend." This is incorrect. There was only one armed robbery incident at the UCT campus last weekend.

Though the other robbery incidents referred to in our campus announcement sent to students and staff last week involved UCT students, these took place off campus. One happened in Khayelitsha (armed robbery) and the other in Claremont (robbery).

While all these incidents remain of a huge concern to UCT, the introduction to your story creates an impression that armed robbery incidents are spiralling at the UCT campus itself.

We kindly request that you correct this in your story please.

Thami Nkwanyane
