ABSTRACT

Where in insurance companies are actuaries required, and which interactions with other departments need to be cultivated? This presentation provides an overview of the insurance world from the perspective of a reserving actuary. We look at what is included in the daily work of a reserving actuary, and what the challenges are when dealing with non-actuarial departments. Current topics such as solvency requirements, periodical payment orders, and ministry of justice reforms and their implications for loss reserving will be discussed.
