Revd Dr Isaias Ezequiel Chachine was born in Southern Mozambique, Xai-xai, Gaza. After graduating in Theology at the University Natal, Pietermaritzburg, proceeded for further studies in Sweden where he obtained his PhD in Theological Ethics at the University of Uppsala. He lectured in Ethics for many years at the College of Transfiguration, an Anglican Theological Seminary, in Grahamstown, Eastern Cape, and served as a visiting scholar at Rhodes University, Department of Political and International Studies, lecturing in Political Philosophy. He is an ordained Anglican priest in the Diocese of Cape Town and he currently serves as an Anglican Chaplain to the University of Cape Town. His research interests include Exploring the Interface between African Religious Ethics and Contemporary Political Philosophy with a special focus on ‘Community, Justice, and Freedom: Liberalism, Communitarianism, and African Contributions to Political Ethics.

Community, Justice and Freedom
Liberalism, Communitarianism, and African Contributions to Political Ethics

Bridging the Gap Between Liberalism and Communitarianism
Exploring the Interface between Social Democracy and Social Justice in Southern Africa
Theological and Philosophical Challenges

Leslie Social Sciences building LS 5.67
Wednesday, 05 September 2018 @ 01:00 – 02:00pm