

WEBINAR

EXPLORING POST COVID-19 PROPERTY TRENDS IN SOUTH AFRICA

In this webinar, A/Prof Francois Viruly will look at the longer term trends in the South African property market and the impact that Covid-19 is expected to have on this particular sector

DATE: WEDNESDAY 12 AUGUST 2020

TIME: 15H00 TO 16H00

COST: R500

PLATFORM: MS TEAMS

Associate Professor Francois Viruly is a property economist with over twenty years of experience in advising public as well as private entities. He lectures at the University of Cape Town in the Department of Construction Economics and Management and is the Director of the UCT-Nedbank Urban Real Estate Research Unit (URERU).

The webinar will pay particular attention to the following themes:

- What's next in the residential and the commercial property sectors
- The impact of the present macro-economic environment on the property sector and the property cycle
- What the gig-economy means for the commercial and residential property sectors
- Short and medium term expectations for vacancies and rental increases
- What sectors are investors and developers focussing on
- Medium term expectations for valuations and property returns.

CLICK HERE TO REGISTER

