Strategies to Overcome
Poverty & Inequality

29 August 2012

This paper will be presented at the Strategies to Overcome Poverty and Inequality Conference to be held at the University of Cape Town from 3 until 7 September 2012. The 2012 conference will focus on understanding the experiences and causes of inequality, and particularly on considering practical strategies – policies and actions – that are aimed at significantly reducing inequality and poverty in both the short- and long-term.

There will be a host of experts in the social, economic, labour and health fields and will include contributions from Trevor Manuel (Minister in the Presidency, National Planning Commission) and Dr Mamphela Ramphele.

School Feeding in South Africa

Laura Poswell lauraposwell@gmail.com

In 1994 President Mandela initiated the South African School Feeding Programme to feed needy learners a daily nutritious meal so that they come to school, stay in school and can concentrate on their education. In 2012 the National School Nutrition Programme aims to feed +- 8 million learners daily, with an annual budget of R5 billion.

There is no shortage of funding, grounding policy and intention to deliver. But the system faces many challenges in ensuring the right meal gets to the right learner at the right time. Addressing the challenges in school feeding can take a range of forms with a particularly interesting lens focusing on trying to work in partnership with the government on a large systemic scale or working from the ground up, one school at a time.
