Nigerian poet and novelist Ben Okri to speak at 13th annual Steve Biko Memorial Lecture at UCT
12 September 2012, 18h00, Jameson Hall, Upper Campus

The Steve Biko Memorial lecture will be delivered at the University of Cape Town on Wednesday, 12 September 2012, by Ben Okri, Nigerian poet, novelist and one of the foremost African writers in the post-modern and post-colonial traditions.

The lecture, which marks the 35th anniversary of Biko’s death, will be hosted by UCT and the Steve Biko Foundation at 18h00 in Jameson Hall, Upper Campus.

Professor Okri has published 10 novels, including The Famished Road, as well as collections of poetry, short stories and essays. His work has been translated into more than 20 languages. He is a Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature and has been awarded the OBE as well as numerous international prizes, including the Commonwealth Writers Prize for Africa, the Aga Khan Prize for Fiction and the Chianti Rufino-Antico Fattore Literary Award. He is a Vice-President of the English Centre of International PEN and was presented with a Crystal Award by the World Economic Forum. He was born in Nigeria and lives in London. His latest collection, A Time for New Dreams, is published by Random House.

The Steve Biko Memorial Lecture was established in 2000 as the flagship programme of the Steve Biko Foundation. It is the principal avenue through which the foundation pursues a core element of its mission: to foster the intangible but essential community building blocks – history, identity, culture and values – as the foundation for leadership and agency at the level of the individual and the community.

The lecture is an opportunity to explore the contemporary relevance of the life and legacy of Bantu Stephen Biko, central to which is the individual’s role in advancing social justice.

Among those who have reflected on the life and legacy of Biko through the Memorial Lecture are some of Africa’s foremost scholars, artists and religious and political leaders,
